Is the product intoxicating? Generally no. When applied to external skin areas as directed, our formulas are designed to deliver THC to the dermis to exert a localized effect on cannabinoid receptors (CB1/CB2). Unlike "transdermal" products, the THC molecules involved in our topical products' application are not expected to be absorbed by dermal blood vessels or cross the blood-brain barrier. This being said, clinical information on cannabis topicals is limited and we can't account for all potential interactions. This product should not be used by children, ingested, or used on broken skin or any internal surface.

What is the efficacy of topical THC? No current research describes an exact amount of THC needed to be effective, but anecdotal data has shown that even 0.1% THC can have an effect on the skin. A THC topical's other ingredients (like jojoba, eucalyptus or peppermint) play an equally important role by supporting the surface skin layer (epidermis) to more readily allow cannabinoids to enter the dermis. Once THC reaches these layers it can stimulate or inhibit integrated cells to help promote balance in your skin.

Are there any allergens? The product was not made with any mainstream allergens. It is recommended that you consult with a physician if you are unsure about any ingredient.

How do I use it? Dab a finger lightly into the balm until you have desired amount. Apply to an outer skin area needing hydration or nourishment. Massage gently until most of the product absorbs. You may experience a tingling which is the herbals and THC at work!
